HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

Save the ideas. Keep the questions.

Compare seating, dining, lounging and smaller terrace arrangements. Start with the actual layout, exposure and use, then request the selected supplier information needed to assess the proposed furniture and finishes. Illustrations in this collection are AI-generated design concepts.

Each design spread links to a relevant product range or selection guide. Keep the page number with your comments when you prepare the project brief.

From a visual direction to a useful brief.

Plan outdoor living around the site.

01 / Describe the room

Share a measured plan, the intended activities and the items the space should contain.

02 / Select the details

Save preferred pages and identify the visible features, finishes and arrangements you want to discuss.

03 / Confirm the package

Review selected-item information, samples, quantities and the itemised supply scope before approval.

The images in this collection are AI-generated design concepts. They illustrate layout and appearance, not supplied SKUs, tested performance or completed projects. Foshan Bridge provides sourcing and trade supply; review actual selected supplier information for your site.

Start with Outdoor Furniture or discuss your project brief.

An outdoor sofa group.

Begin with the site and the intended seating routine.

DESIGN DIRECTION

This concept illustrates a sofa-based outdoor arrangement. Use it to discuss the grouping of seats and tables, then translate the direction to the actual terrace or garden plan. The illustration does not establish a supplied model, construction or suitability for a particular exposure.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Provide the site layout and covered/open conditions. Request actual selected-item dimensions, construction and care information. Identify cushions, covers and storage arrangements separately.

A sectional concept.

The return can define an outdoor seating zone.

DESIGN DIRECTION

The sectional direction creates a more enclosed seating group around a central area. Its usefulness depends on the available footprint, access and intended activities. Compare the arrangement on the actual site plan before requesting available supplier models and configurations.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Confirm the proposed orientation and module list. Check circulation and access. Request the selected supplier information for frames, finishes, cushions and maintenance.

DESIGN DIRECTION

A group of individual chairs offers a different visual direction from a continuous sofa. Their relationship to tables and the route through the space matters to the overall arrangement. The concept helps define the grouping, while the actual furniture selection establishes dimensions, materials and use requirements.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

List the desired pieces and quantities. Request item references, construction and care information. Review site exposure, storage and access with the proposed supplier.

DESIGN DIRECTION

The dining concept places a furniture group within an outdoor setting. Begin with the intended activities and number of places, then check the actual table and chair footprints. The illustration is a layout reference and does not provide a tested product specification.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Provide the site plan and use conditions. Request selected dimensions, materials and maintenance information. Review assembly, cushions and delivery access as separate scope fields.

A dining-chair direction.

Review the chair together with the selected table.

DESIGN DIRECTION

The chair concept helps compare a visible seating direction for an outdoor dining area. The final choice needs to relate to the table, users and actual site conditions. Material appearance in an illustration cannot establish resistance, durability or a particular construction.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Request the actual model reference and dimensions. Ask for construction, finish and care information and any project-required evidence. Confirm quantity and storage arrangements.

DESIGN DIRECTION

The lounger concept introduces a different outdoor use from upright dining or conversation seating. Its footprint and any operating positions should be reviewed with the actual circulation and surroundings. Select the real product information before judging whether it suits the intended site.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Identify use conditions and storage needs. Request overall and operating dimensions, construction and care information. Confirm cushions, accessories, assembly and delivery scope.

DESIGN DIRECTION

A small table and chair group can help communicate an intimate terrace or balcony direction. Its actual usefulness depends on the dimensions of the selected pieces and the available access. Review the furniture in the measured space rather than assuming a compact-looking illustration will fit.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

Provide a measured layout and access route. Request actual item dimensions and supplier information. Check chair movement, maintenance and storage with the proposed arrangement.

DESIGN DIRECTION

Smaller tables can connect an outdoor seating group, but they remain individual selected products. Their visible finish and height should be reviewed with the seating and intended activities. Use the concept to define a role, then specify the actual pieces and quantities.

PLAN IT FOR YOUR ROOM

List each table and loose item separately. Request dimensions, construction and care information. Confirm site conditions, included accessories and delivery arrangements with the supplier.
